

Alan Siegel, Ph.D.
Hogan Coaching Network

---

Background

Alan has been partnering with executives for over 30 years to strengthen leadership capability and impact business results. As an executive coach and organizational consultant, he has worked with leaders in North America, Europe, Asia, and Latin America, across a wide array of industry sectors and business functions.

His coaching clients range from senior executives sharpening their edge as they implement business strategy, to leaders assimilating into new roles and high potentials seeking leadership skills and insights to increase readiness and impact. He has extensive experience in helping leaders align and drive strategy execution, manage business and cultural transformation, and accelerate the development of teams and individual talent. His work has a strong bias toward moving from “insight to action” to produce accelerated and measurable individual and business impact.
