Background

Gitte is an impactful assessor and coach with international consulting experience. She has a background in business psychology and is dedicated to help clients identify and reach goals for personal and organizational development. Whether the goal being improvement of managerial and interpersonal skills or strategies to staying focused and increasing efficiency, the objective for Gitte as a feedback provider and coach is to help clients build strategic self-awareness around their strengths and development areas.

She has assessed individuals from new managers to executives in both selection and coaching processes, and as a consultant for a European distributor of Hogan Assessments, she worked with a range of both multinationals and smaller organizations within various industries. She has comprehensive experience in applying Hogan Assessments for selection and development. Moreover, she has delivered training of professionals in the interpretation and uses of the Hogan tools.
